

IMPROVING OUTCOMES FOR YOUTH IN TRANSITION

"Improving Outcomes for Youth in Transition," Journal of Child and Youth Care Work, Vol. 23, 2010. Between 2005 and 2008, the University of Iowa and the Iowa Department of Human Services developed a training program for supervisors, caseworkers and community partners of the Iowa child welfare system in order to help foster youth better transition to living independently. The program trains supervisors in key concepts around transition planning and helps them facilitate trainings with their own staff and other community agencies. The authors discuss challenges they encountered along the way and how they worked on overcoming them. <http://sparkaction.org/resources/58891>