

5/6/2011

These new resources are for youth and others who are transitioning to work and adult life after high school. The sites are easy to use and interactive. Enjoy

MY NEXT MOVE

The U.S. Department of Labor has launched My Next Move, a web-based tool to provide job seekers with information on more than 900 occupations, as well as local job openings and training opportunities. Users can search for jobs in three categories: jobs with a "bright outlook" in growing industries, jobs that are part of the "green" economy, and jobs with Registered Apprenticeship programs. Each listing has a one-page profile with information about what knowledge, skills, and abilities are needed; the occupation's outlook; level of education required; technologies used in the job; other similar jobs; and links to local salary information, training opportunities, and relevant job openings. For more information go to <http://www.mynextmove.org>

JobTIPS

Tips for getting a job and keeping it are at the heart of a new government-funded website designed to help individuals with developmental disabilities become gainfully employed. Through text and video-based features, the website known as JobTIPS offers tools for job seekers with disabilities to identify compatible employment opportunities. Moreover, the site offers advice on how to act in an interview or at work and tips on when and how to talk about a diagnosis. In addition to assistance for individuals with disabilities, the website includes resources for educators, clinicians and transition specialists. For more information go to <http://www.do2learn.com/JobTIPS/index.html>